To whom it may concern,

This letter is being sent on behalf of Jennifer Edwards Emmi. It is my understanding that her parenting is being judged and said to be inadequate. This is so far from the truth. Jennifer is an excellent mother, caring, loving and very involved. I have seen her on numerous occasions taking care of her children's needs and always there with them when they were ill, or needed her. It is obvious she is extremely close to her children and you can tell they adore her. The thoughts of those children being kept from her is nothing more than child abuse.

When her daughter was born, she was having medical problems with eating disorders. When Jennifer was not happy with the care her daughter was receiving she researched and was tenacious, until she finally found a physician who helped her child. Her daughter had a feeding tube put in, and it was only Jennifer, and her mother who knew how to feed her and clean the tube. Her father was not involved with this process at all. In all the times her daughter was in and out of the hospital for different procedures I only remember Jennifer and her Mother being there for her, I always thought it was unusual that her father was not that involved.

Jennifer is an excellent mother and as far as I am concerned anyone who has been around her and the children would only agree.

Sincerely,

Marilyn Raley
